Dear Mr Roberts

Thank you for your additional correspondence on BHP Billiton's climate change position.

As outlined on 27 March 2015, BHP Billiton's climate change position is firm. We accept climate change is a global challenge and we take it seriously.

Fossil fuels will continue to be a part of the global energy mix for decades to come; however the sustainable growth of our business and the creation and protection of value for shareholders requires an effective response to climate change.

As a leading global resources company, we make robust decisions to create long-term shareholder value. This involves ensuring all risks, like climate change, are identified, assessed and appropriately addressed. We have a responsibility, to our shareholders and to society, to take action.

That is why we are focusing our efforts on reducing our emissions, increasing our preparedness for physical climate impacts, focusing on low emissions technologies and working with others, including our industry and governments, to enhance the global response to climate change.

Our views on this matter were determined after careful and detailed consideration. I encourage you to keep up to date on our continued response to climate change via our website <http://www.bhpbilliton.com/home/society/climatechange/Pages/Climate-Change.aspx>

Yours sincerely
